P-T-C-T Levels of Support

A student's bilingual partner should always be their first line of support As a pair, students extend across the table to ask their face partners Student pairs extend to other tables for support

- The teacher is the last level of support during paired learning
- If pairs of students are asking the same question(s), the teacher should consider reteaching